Bobhistory Politics 1950s And 60s

Although this may sound peaceful, the 1950s were one of the most turbulent decades in global politics, containing some seminal political events. The 1950s saw the rise of global tensions due to cold war, and the world was cleft into two political, administrative and ideological halves — capitalism, espoused by the US, and communism, adopted ...

The '50s and '60s: Decades of Prosperity and Protest (DBQ) Historians tend to portray the 1950s as a decade of prosperity, conformity, and consensus, and the 1960s as a decade of turbulence, protest, and disillusionment. These stereotypes are largely true, though, as with everything in life, there are exceptions to this perspective.

Think Doris Day, who modelled the bob in its varying shapes throughout the 1950s and 1960s. The bob, unfortunately, is losing its revolutionary edge until..... The 1960s bob. In the 1960s the bob is about to become as radical a style shape as in the 1920s and will symbolise a further phase of female emancipation. Young women take interest in the future and distance themselves from the stuffy austere past of their parents (does this sound familiar?).

At the start of the 1960s, things seemed pretty much like the 1950s: prosperous, calm, and predictable. But by 1963, the civil rights movement was making headlines and the young and vibrant President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, one of the most stunning events of the 20th century.

In the 1950s, it was the full swing skirts, protruding chests, and small waists that needed short cropped hairstyles to balance out the bottom heavy fashions. Some 1950s hairstyles were as short as the flapper bob, but the '50s bob was fuller and more dramatic like the small hats that sat on a 1950s woman's head. Indeed, with bigger but ...

Not everything changes between the 60's and 90's, but what does is enough to flip the red and blue states and reshape American politics. See the 88th United States Congress - 104th United States Congress and compare that to historic elections in that same time for some examples of the slow change from the 60's to 90's.

I mentioned earlier that the FI experienced sharp debates in the 1950s and 60s over how to relate to Stalinist parties. In the 1960s and 70s the debates centred on the merits of urban and rural guerrilla warfare, with tragic results for our party in Argentina, reminiscent of the tragedy that befell Che Guevara in Bolivia.
